Overview

Lori A. Brown is a shareholder in Littler's Miami office and a member of the firm's Management Committee. She has extensive experience counseling and defending employers on a range of workplace issues, including discrimination, harassment, and wage and hour matters. Lori has a particular focus on counseling companies and their C-Suites through sensitive personnel matters, while ensuring compliance with constantly evolving federal and state employment and labor laws.

Previously, Lori was a shareholder with Littler from 2003 to 2011 and served on the firm's Board of Directors for six of those years, while also serving as Miami Office Managing Shareholder. In 2011, Lori joined a global security organization as Chief Legal Officer and Head of Human Resources where she oversaw all legal affairs, risk management, talent acquisition, benefits, employee and labor relations.

Lori left in 2015 to launch ComplianceHR, a Littler tech joint venture with Neota Logic. She was instrumental to the success of the organization and remains involved today as a strategic advisor. Before joining Littler, Lori was a partner at a major law firm, where she co-chaired the firm's labor and employment practice.
